GRADUATION PROJECT

In my bachelor's graduation project, I worked on a website similar to freelance work using the web language in the front-end technology used (HTML, CSS, JavaScript, jQuery Library, Bootstrap Framework), and in the back-end technology used (PHP language, MySQL database)

The project was designed "to serve you" to make it easier for the user to purchase what he needs from one site at nominal prices, to ensure mastery of work, and to contribute to providing a job opportunity for those who can produce without the hassle of registering.

To serve you is a website that offers a variety of services that help the individual complete daily operations, such as household services such as cleaning and others, and social services such as babysitting young children and the elderly, for example the nurse who can take care of the elderly in their homes. Our website has provided them with one place where they can... During which their names are published so that the service seeker can reach them and health services such as finding the nearest pharmacy and others

This is done by creating an account on the "To Serve You" website and registering later so that the user can interact on this website by selling, buying, or interacting.

What distinguishes our website most is the type of work offered, it is unique.
